

In dialogues with Satish, in times of quiet reflection and through participation in community life this programme will offer an opportunity to slow down, deepen and revitalise what has heart and meaning...

Satish Kumar & Daniel Wahl

A Journey Through Inner and Outer Landscapes

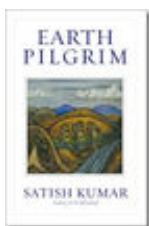

28 June - 2 July, 2010 The Park, Findhorn, Moray

Satish is well respected internationally for the eloquence with which he expresses coherent views on reverential ecology, holistic education, economics as if people mattered and the joys of voluntary simplicity.

His gentle wisdom and humour remind us that the transition towards a sustainable and resilient culture will require us to pay attention to the deeper meaning and hidden connections between soil, soul and society.

Join the "Earth Pilgrim" on walks in the beautiful Moray countryside

Satish Kumar undertook a peace pilgrimage at a young age, walking from India throughout Eur-Asia and America without any money to deliver packets of peace tea to leaders of the four nuclear powers. Deeply inspired by EF Schumacher's "buddhist economics" he has edited Resurgence magazine for over 30 years, is one of the founders of the Small School and Schumacher College and is a patron of Findhorn College.

Daniel Wahl is the academic director of Findhorn College, and works internationally as a consultant and educator in design for sustainability. Daniel gained a distinction for his MSc Holistic Science at Schumacher College in 2002 and completed his PhD at the Centre for the Study of Natural Design (University of Dundee) in 2006. He will hold the first two days of the course before Satish's arrival.

Price: £525/£675/£795 (low/medium/high income)

Includes full board and tuition

Contact Information - Findhorn College - www.findhorncollege.org

Tel: 01309 690806, E-mail: college@findhorncollege.org